Thinking about your feelings about this health care reform law...
Would you say that you are:

Voters are fairly evenly split on political messaging of health care

Please tell me which viewpoint comes closest to your own:

This health care reform law is a historic achievement that will expand health insurance coverage to millions of Americans, end insurance company abuses, help small businesses provide coverage, reduce prescription drug costs, and lower the deficit.

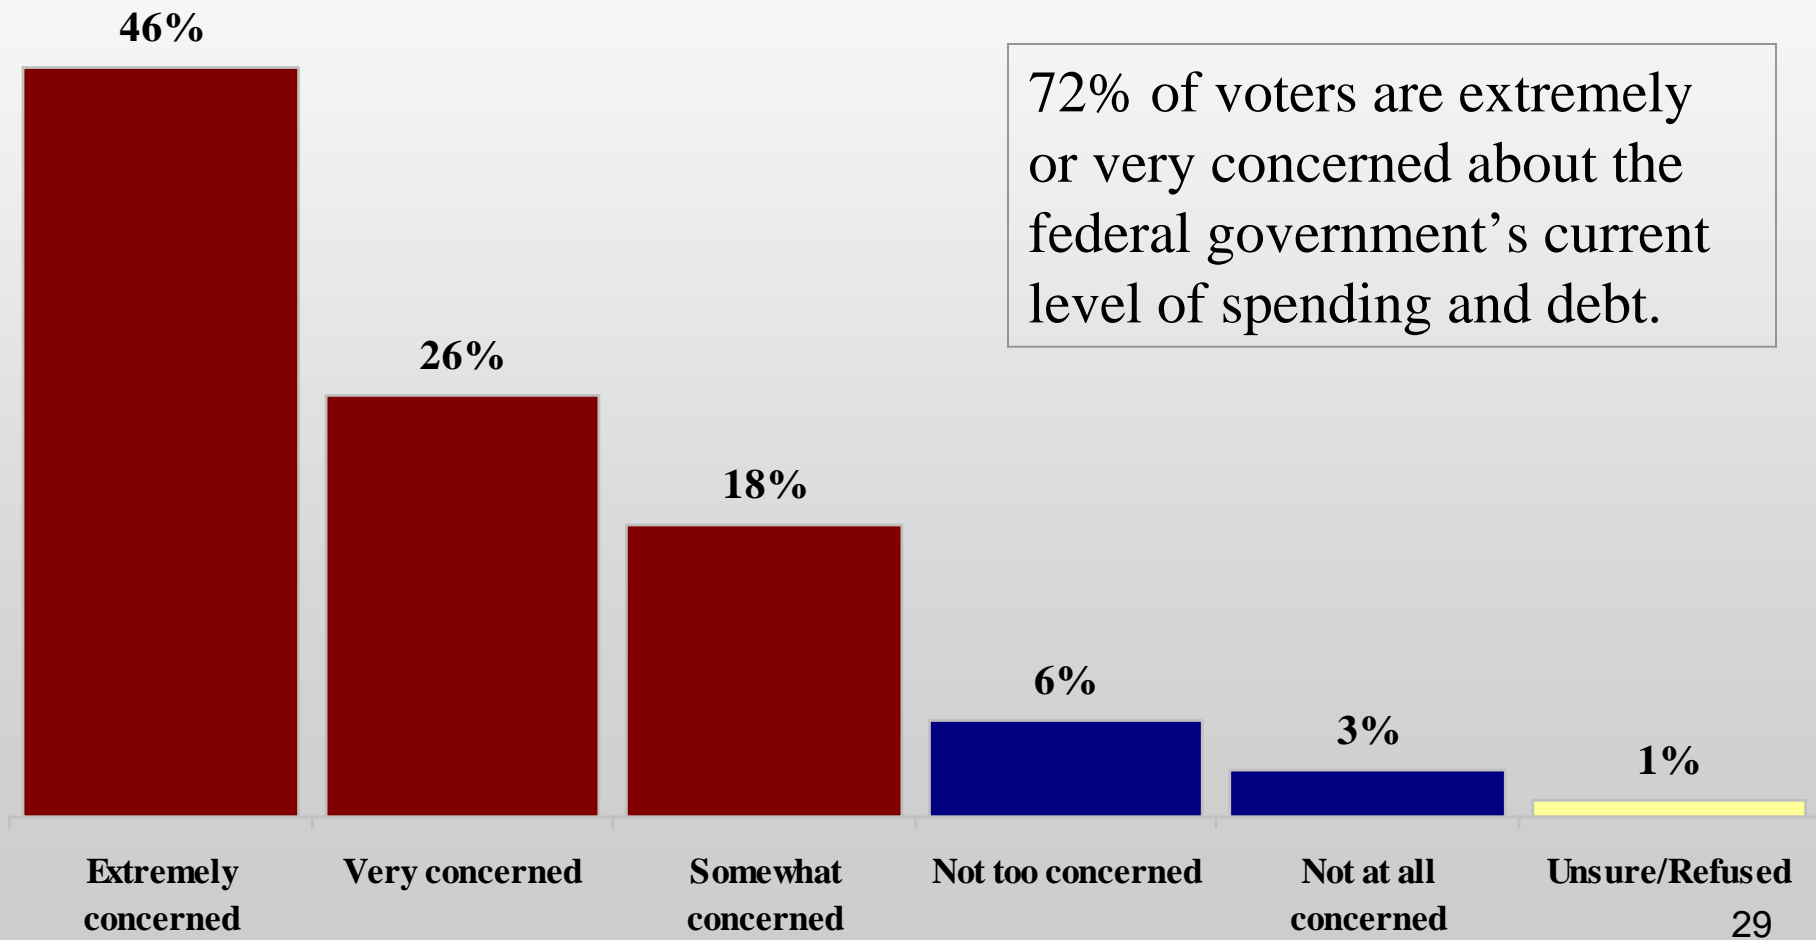

47%

This health care reform law is a government takeover of one-sixth of the American economy that will lead to higher medical costs, higher taxes, reduced quality of health care services, and will ultimately kill small business jobs.

49%

A majority of Independents (50%) lean toward the GOP position of higher medical costs/higher taxes and quality reduced.

How concerned are you about the federal government's current level of spending and debt:

Political messaging on government spending

Please tell me which viewpoint comes closest to your own:

The current level of government spending is already unsustainable and irresponsible. This increased government spending has not created jobs, will double the national debt, and will lead to increased taxes on the middle class.

58%

The current level of government spending is a necessary response to save and create jobs, ensure national security, and fight two wars. Once the economy recovers, we will be able to pay down the deficit and the national debt.

39%

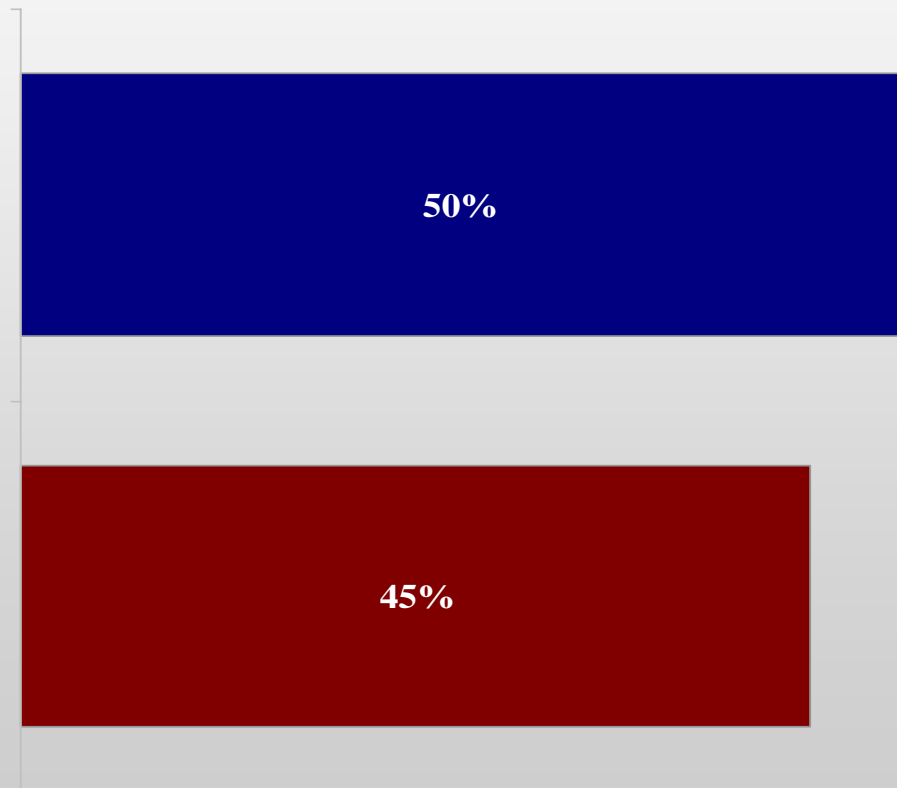

A majority of Independents (60%) lean toward the GOP position that the current level of spending is already unsustainable and irresponsible.

Political messaging on financial reform

Currently there is not government agency with the sole mission of overseeing financial products sold to consumers and small businesses, like mortgages, bank loans and credit cards. Congress and President Obama are currently discussing creating an agency to create and enforce rules for financial products.

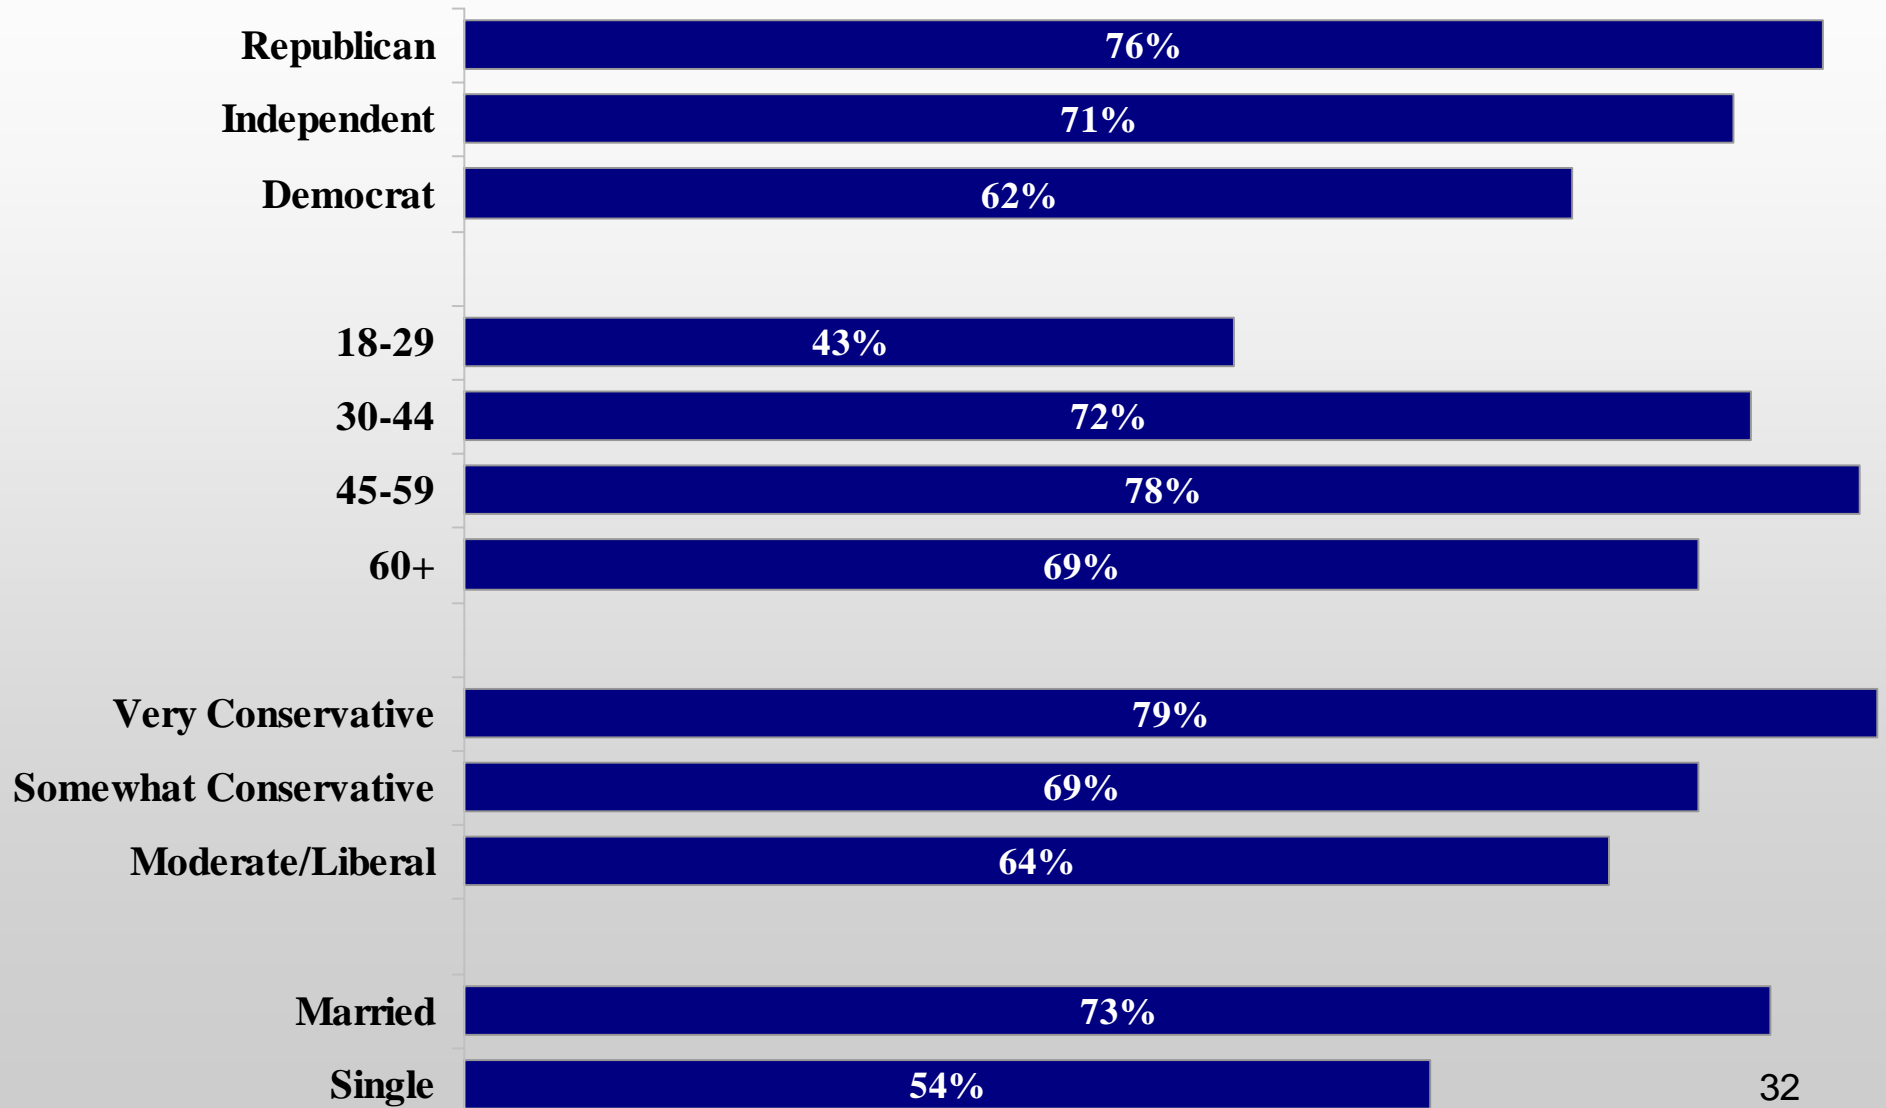

We need an independent Consumer Financial Protection Agency to create and enforce fair, affordable, understandable, and transparent rules for financial products like mortgages and credit cards and stop banks and credit card companies from tricking people with teaser rates, hidden fees and small print.

This agency represents one of the worst trends in politics today – Congress failing to take tough choices about regulations and instead giving this job to unaccountable federal bureaucrats. We do not need another federal agency wasting more of our hard earned tax dollars to do work that Congress should be doing.

A majority of Independents (51%) lean toward the GOP position that there are enough protections and no new agency is needed.
